- analysing use of the Website.

Accuracy and security of the personal information that we hold

We take reasonable steps to make sure that the personal information that we collect is accurate, up to date and complete. Please contact us if the personal information that we hold about you is inaccurate, incomplete or out-of-date, and we will take reasonable steps to correct the information.

We also take reasonable steps to protect personal information that we hold from misuse and loss and from unauthorised access, modification or disclosure.

Accessing your personal information

Under the PDPA, you have a right to access your personal information, although the PDPA does provide for some exceptions to this general rule. For security reasons, you may be required to apply in writing before we will give you access to your personal information. We may charge a fee for retrieving your personal information and providing it to you.

Cookies

We may use a cookie file containing information that can identify the computer you are working from. You can choose to refuse cookies by turning off the cookies function in your browser and/or deleting the cookies from your hard drive. You will not be able to maintain a logged in session if cookies are not enabled in your browser or if they are removed from your hard drive.

Changes to this privacy policy

We reserve the right to change this privacy policy from time to time to reflect changes in our business requirements and changes in the law. Changes will be updated in this policy on the Website, so you should check periodically to make sure that you are aware of the most recent version of the policy.
